INTENDED LEARNING OUTCOMES

To each of the participants within this camp, we would like for them to be able, upon completion, to realize and be able to execute the following:

1. Focus on a long term goal. Identifying the paths in life will drastically define the direction in which the participants will lead their life. Options are plenteous, however, realizing the variables which will give them the most potential.
2. Breaking the big picture into smaller life choices. Upon completion of this activity, each and every participant will be able to identify the foundational building blocks of their end game will be deeply rooted within their ability to make proper choices. Everywhere from the classroom, to public life, to social media.
3. Intentionality within choices is only derived from the ability to see that their choices are first affecting themselves, and then secondarily others
4. Influential positions place the participants in a leadership role where they will build or break the future. The identification of the influence and impact will bring to the realization that the leader will influence the future.
